But while this is the case with regard to routine work, the openings and prospects for men of originaliby, energy, and resource, or of exceptional skill in special trades or professions, are probably not inferior now to what they have been in the past.

Something like an echo of Mr. BREDON's rebeen bought by Chinese during the last year, many of the houses and stores which were in former years occupied by foreign merchants and storekeepers are now occupied by Chinese import and export merchants, shipping people, and storekeepers. Chinese shipchandlers, etc., are supplying the foreign men-of-war and shipping, our households and hotels with foreign goods and stores. The large old foreign stores have with but a few excep-"tions had to cave in to the keen native competitor. Foreign jewellers, watchmakers, printers, tailors, even engineering establishments, have a hard fight for existence with the Chinese." This, we imagine, rather an enggerated picture; cerainly it would not be true of Hongkong, where the foreign stores have not fallen on such evil times as Mr. Bigi-FELD represents to be the case in Shanghai, The competition of the native shops is keenly felt, no doubt, especially in such lines as call for no special knowledge or trustworthiness, but wherever skill and care are required the European holds his own, the judicious purchaser being as a [20] rule willing to pay rather a higher price for, reliability in the matter of quality and excellence of finish as regards the workmanship. > Mr LEWIS-Are the mortgages first charges on the property before the debentures?

The CHAIRMAN-Yes. Mr. Wicking-What right had the directors to contract a mortgage without the consent of the debouture holders? The CHAIRMAN-We were acting in the best interests of all concerned. You may remember that at the time it was necessary to get more money. Every effort was made, to raise the hibiting the carrying of pig-wash, &c., through the required amount on debentures under the same conditions as the provious issue, but without success. You must bear in mind the position of the Company at the time. The contractor had refused to go on with the building without money: a forced sale of the Mountain View property would have shown a more serious loss then than it ultimately did; the shell of the Hotel would probably have fotohed less than the value of the bricks in it. The directors and to decide whather they should face a loss not only on the outside building operations but on the Motel itself. Contracts had been entered into not only for the completion of the building but for its appointments and Inchishing as well as for its stock of wines and provisions, and I would ask you as business mon whather if any of you had been on the board of directors you would The death-rate per 1,000 per annum for the have felt justified (after sutering into such responsible engagements on behalf of the Company) in repudiating them with the certainty that the debenture bolders would loss the whole of their money, and that a great number of persons who had trusted to our respectability and good fuith in executing these orders would suffer a heavy loss by the Company being would up without giving the Hotel a chance. Under these circumstances I consulted the Company's solicitors in London, and through them took the advice of eminent companies' connsel, and apon this advice I soled throughout for the benefit to the best of my ability of all concerned. . Mr. Wicking-I think before the morigages were issued that the debenture holders should bare been consulted. Mr. ORANGE - What would have been the use The CHAIRMAN—The debenture holders knew perfectly well what was going on. Theyldid not want to lend the money themselves, and if they had had anything to suggest they could have called a meeting and put it forward. Mr. Fenwick, the largest debenture holder, was very pleasudght the time and said we had done our best for the Company.
